For most people, living off the grid simply means living a more sustainable life, reducing resources they consume and in fact producing more than they use. It means disconnecting not just from the electrical grid but also creating your own, growing your own food and living green. Here at share 16, 1238 Byrrill Creek rd we just simply call it living. Sustainable living is about finding balance of lifestyle, that gives back to the earth rather than taking from it.

In the middle of these incredible views where the serrated mountains touch the sky you can operate independently and create, grow, harvest and nurture.

The breathtaking mountains are drenched in brilliant light and the clouds catch the edge of the mountains wanting to hang on until the spring-like breezes push them on their way.

There are paddocks in every direction perfectly fenced suitable for crops, happy animals or buzzing beehives.

There are chicken huts, ready for golden hens to dust bath and scratch at the flitting insects.

Fruits of every type and colour glowing rosy with sunshine. Each tree, its criss-crossed branches spread out proud, displaying its bounty.

The colours of chaos and order of the beautiful trees.

Two houses to choose from, one built, the other half way there, a potential dream home waiting for the next chapter in its story.

Building materials galore to choose from to establish your personality on this property.

A large shed is able to hold your projects and shelter your ideas.

Get your hands on the earth, the tools in your hand, the produce in your tummies and live freely on this idyllic property.
